

14

ABSTRACTAllocation of Communications
Frequency Spectrum

5

A method of monitoring frequency availability for a telecommunications network includes: establishing details of frequency spectrum usage in a database, said details to include one or more of time of use, frequency and 10 geographic area of use; and providing query means for the database, to allow the contents of the database to be queried.

15 [Figure 2]

20